Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 22 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Patchy cloud and sunny spells. Feeling warmer than on Monday.

Today:
After a cool start with largely clear skies, patchy fair-weather cloud will bubble up as the day goes on. It will be a fine and dry day however, with plenty of sunny spells and feeling pleasantly warm for most. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Staying largely dry with clear skies through the evening, before cloud builds going overnight ahead of an approaching band of rain, this arriving over western areas through the early hours. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Wednesday:
A damp, cloudy day for most, as the band of rain and drizzle continues southeastwards. Northwestern areas will likely see patchy rain throughout the day, with southeastern staying largely dry. Maximum temperature 16 deg C (61 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Mostly cloudy Thursday, with occasional light rain for northwestern areas but largely dry otherwise. Cloud persisting Friday, with scattered, possibly heavy and thundery showers likely. Drier Saturday, with bright spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.